BRIGHAM YOUNG .- On the 31st ultimo, in Great Salt Lake City, Brigham Young was married for the thirty-first time, the happy bride being Mrs. Merivine Van Cott, a lady twenty-eight years of age, daughter of Elder Van Cott, and formerly, while a gentile, the wife of a Mr. Cobb, from whom she was duly divorced, so that she could resume her maiden name. She is now the thirty-first of the Mormon prophet's wives, not counting those who have been only sealed, or formally married to him for the sake of merely securing their salvation, since none but married women are admitted into the Mormon heaven. Of the previous thirty wives, the most recent was married to Brigham on the 29th of January, 1862; her name was Amelia Folsom, and she emigrated to Utah from Council Bluffs, Iowa. She has since presided over his establishment and Hat in the first place in the temple and the theatre. Now she resigns this distinction to Mrs. Van Cott, and becomes lost in the general mass of the household. The prophet's thirty-first wedding festival was also distinguished by the marriage of his fourth daughter, Emily, to Elder Hiram B. Clawson, who first wite is also Mr. Young's eldest daughter, Alice.

The Saturday Review, in reference to sensational literature, says that of late years it has declined, not so much from being written down, as being written out. It no longer pleasantly excites but where it does not disgust, it wearies.
